Aid Evaluation Paper

Paper:

You will choose an aid project to evaluate. This project or initiative may be in the local community, in the U.S. or may be an international initiative.

Using the readings we have done, the text books from class, and your own research, you will evaluate the effectiveness of the aid project and make an argument for why this aid project is one that is effective (based on research and best practices) or why the project is not a good one. If the project is not effective as it is, what might be done to improve it?

You should have at least 7 sources (which may include some sources from class, but should also include outside sources), and this paper should be typed and double-spaced using APA or MLA format. The paper should be roughly 5 to 7 pages. You will be expected to revise your paper at least once based on initial instructor feedback.

Presentation:

You will give a 8 – 10 minute presentation on the aid project that you chose and discuss with the class why the project is a good one or one that needs some adjustment based on the research and readings you have done.

The presentation should have an introduction, body and conclusion.

You may use visual aids, such as PowerPoint, but DO NOT allow the slide show to be the whole presentation. You will be graded on your presentation skills and public speaking delivery as well as the content of the presentation.
